THE INDIANS OF THE PAINTED DESERT REGION. Hopis, Navahoes, Wallapais, Havasupais. By GEORGE WHARTON JAMES. With Numerous Illustrations from Photographs. Boston : Little, Brown & Company. 1903. Pp. xi, 268. Price, $2 net.

The sixteen chapters of this interesting and well-illustrated volume treat of the following topics : The painted desert region, desert recollections, first glimpses of the Hopi, the Hopi villages and their history, a few Hopi customs, the religious life of the Hopi, the Hopi snake dance, the Navaho and his history, the Navaho at home, the Navaho as a blanket weaver, the Wallapais, the people of the blue water and their home, the Havasupai and their legends, the social and domestic life of the Havasupai, the Havasupais' religious dances and beliefs. A bibliography is given on pages 265-268, but no index has been thought necessary. The author has drawn upon the best literature of the subject as well as utilizing his own extended personal observations and intimate personal acquaintance with many of the Indians concerned. The standpoint from which the book is written is thoroughly sympathetic without being too partisan or inaccurate. The style is discursive rather than rigid, — intentionally so, and the book is intended, not as a complete study of the subject, but "to place in compact form for the general reader reliable accounts of places and peoples in the United States hitherto known only to the explorer and the scientist." The data concerning the Wallapais and the Havasupais are particularly timely, since so little has been written about these interesting tribes. "The Indians of the Painted Desert Region" deserves recognition as a popular book on the Indians of part of the great southwest of the United States. Women, especially, will find much that is attractive and instructive in the sections treating of the domestic life of such Indians as the Hopi, with whom "women's rights" are so fundamentally recognized. The folk-lore contents of the volume are considered elsewhere in this Journal.

INDIANS OF THE SOUTHWEST. By GEORGE A. DORSEY, PH. D., Curator of Anthropology Field Columbian Museum. Designs by A. S. Covey. Passenger Department, Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé Railway System. Fifteenth thousand. 1903. Pp. 223.

This is an excellent popular account of the Indians of the Southwest of the United States, by a well-equipped man of science, and the railroad authorities are to be congratulated upon having put the work into such able hands. The numerous illustrations are good, and the text covers the following topics: Introduction to the Southwest; Southwest peoples, tribes, and linguistic stocks; three Southwestern industries (basketry, pottery, weaving); Upper Rio Grande Pueblos; Homes of the ancients; Lower Rio Grande Pueblos; the Western Keresan Pueblos; Zuñi and the Seven Cities of Cibola; To Hopiland, Province of Tusayan; Domestic life of the Hopi; the Hopi at worship; Hopi ceremonies; Flute, antelope, and snake ceremonies; Ancient home of the Hopi; the Navaho; the Apache; Tribes of the Yuman and Piman stocks; Tribes of Southeastern California. Pages 217-223 contain well-chosen bibliographies (with critical notes) for each of the eighteen chapters of the book. The mass of information compressed within these pages will certainly enable us "to better understand civilized man of to-day by a knowledge of man in more primitive conditions." Others than tourists will make good use of Dr. Dorsey's volume.

BRITISH FAMILY NAMES, THEIR ORIGIN AND MEANING, with Lists of Scandinavian, Frisian, Anglo-Saxon, and Norman Names. By Rev. HENRY BARBER, M. D., F. S. A., etc. Second edition, enlarged. London: Eliot Stock, 1903. Pp. 286. Price 10/6 net to subscribers.

To the 8500 names considered in the first edition the author has added some 2500, making 10,000 recorded here of the British surnames which has arisen since about the year 1000 A. D., when they began first to be used in the land, according to Dr. Barber. In the introductory sections nicknames (the oldest of all), clan or tribal names, place names, official names, trade names, Christian names, foreign names, and foundling names are briefly discussed. Lists of Old Norse personal names (also pet names for girls and boys), Frisian personal and family names, names of persons entered in Domesday Book as holding lands, temp. King Ed. Confr., names of tenants in chief in Domesday Book, names of under-tenants of lands at the time of the Domesday survey, and of Norman names, are given, while pages 77-283 contain an "Alphabetical List of British Surnames"—Abbiss-Zouch. An appendix (pp. 285, 286) gives a list of "names under consideration, many of which are reported as not to be found in any existing gazetteer or
